Bull Feeney’s Authentic Irish pub & restaurant, serving delicious from-scratch
“Stingers. And keep them coming.”

The East Ender channels the holidays and the past.

BY DIANE HUDSON

It was a classic cocktail, the Stinger, a staple in Cary Grant movies, that drew us to the East Ender. Having hunted it down for weeks, disappointed time and time again, my friend quite accidentally spotted it here. He folds his hands. “It’s listed with the digestifs and desserts.”

Arriving for happy hour, (Monday-Saturday, 3:30-5:30 p.m.), we figure why not test the “Bees Knees,” ($6) too, before the Stinger? Go with the theme, you know? A brilliant cocktail, the Stinger, a staple in Cary Grant movies, that drew us to the East Ender. Shifting gears, we devour the Crunchy Asian Slaw ($10) with ginger chili soy dressing, fried wontons, and roasted peanuts. The soothing dish provides a textured treat before we sail into the Smoked Hake Chowder, a major bargain at $9. We agree: “We’d never make this at home.”

At once friendly and familiar, the chowder hints to us that we’re tasting the holidays. And that feeling extends to, of all things, the House Smoked Burger ($15)—in a class of its own. I’d rather have it than most any steak I’ve had recently. It wasn’t because we added succulent North Spore mushrooms (+$3). The secrets of it are many, but one they tout is the “cold-smoked” meat process. The burger stays together with a firm yet tender texture within a tasty and manageable schmaltz bun. The melted local Jack cheese is beautifully integrated throughout. The Thrice Cooked Fries sport just the right crispiness on the outside, giving way to a soft, hot middle. Our wines-by-the-glass are outstanding: a 2015 Storypoint Cabernet Sauvignon ($9) and 2015 Castello D’Alba Douro ($8).

For a sweet finish, we share the Sableuse ($9) with fresh, wild Maine blueberries and a vanilla bean cremeux! But wait! We’re forgetting the Stinger ($11). Dating to the 1890s, this classic appears gracefully in another crystal glass. Lovingly prepared with Camus VS Elegance Cognac and a house-made crème de menthe, it’s a knockout and well worth coming for on its own. Except, who’d want to miss this meal?
